Defense payroll systems safe from Y2K bug says DFAS official

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON — Extinction looms for the last “Y2K bugs” that may be hiding in DOD payroll systems, the Defense Finance and Accounting Service director said in a recent interview.

All DFAS payroll computer software has proved Year 2000 compliant, Gary Amlin said. “I am very confident that all DOD civilians, military members and retirees will in fact get paid after Jan. 1, 2000,” he said. The service pays 5 million people per month.

The Year 2000 problem, nicknamed “Y2K” and “millennium bug,” refers to a past computer industry practice of writing years with just two digits — 1999 would be “99.” Because of this digital shorthand, on Jan. 1, 2000, some computer systems might treat “00” as “1900” or just shut down. Almost all systems are vulnerable and need to be checked and then, if necessary, fixed to handle the year change correctly. A computer system that can recognize the year 2000 is called “compliant.”

Amlin said the service began work on the problem three years ago. “Last year, it became our No. 1 priority,” he said during an interview. “I feel confident we’ll do extremely well.”

But DFAS doesn’t pay military members, civilians and retirees on its own. It receives personnel information from the various personnel agencies. DFAS workers compute the pay and send the information to the Federal Reserve Bank, which then distributes payments electronically to thousands of financial institutions.

“The [Federal Reserve Bank] is compliant from a system standpoint and we will continue to test with them,” Amlin said. DFAS started end-to-end testing of the payroll system this month. “[We’re going] from personnel system to payroll to Federal Reserve Bank to financial institutions,” he said.

Tests show the computer interface between DFAS and the Federal Reserve works, he remarked. The Federal Reserve Bank will support testing of Y2K solutions with selected stateside financial institutions, overseas DOD credit unions, and NationsBank, the defense contractor that provides banking services to all DOD personnel overseas.

The finance and accounting service is also working on contingency plans in case an unexpected Y2K crawls out. For example, back-up computer tapes will be on standby at the Federal Reserve Bank in case there’s a data transmission problem. In addition, the service will

Commander discusses upcoming changes to commissary at Presidio of Monterey Annex

I want to take a moment and highlight our Commissary, under the supervision of Loren Sperry and Ron Trimble. I think that you must be feeling the same way about our commissary because your voting at the cash register said that sales are up 4.6 percent last month and 2.5 percent overall this year!

These are among the top increases

From the desk of the Garrison Commander in sales across the commissary system. Because of your support the commissary is now again recognized in the very large regional store category (the highest category); the same category it was back when the 7th Infantry Division was based at Fort Ord.

What this means is that the commissary is now authorized to increase some 1,800 to 2,000 new lines of products for you! Loren and Ron will be closing the store to re-set the stock on the 12th and 13th of April and will re-open with a grand new opening on the 14th of April.

Please come early on that day. We plan to cut a ribbon to the new improved store approximately 9:45 a.m. We expect many promotional items and surprises for you, our customers. Please join us if you can. Loren and Ron also plan to be increasing the frozen stock in May.

Hope you can come and join us on April 14. Most of all keep up your patronage for our commissary. And your suggestions to make the store better are always wanted; just tell Loren or Ron and they will get it done to the best of their ability. And say thanks to all the hard-working folks in the store; they are all working to make our lives a little bit easier. See you there.

Thanks for listening.

Military shoppers choose commissary as top military benefit

FORT LEE, Va. — Military shoppers again chose the commissary as their No. 1 military benefit, according to the findings of the most recent survey conducted by the Defense Commissary Agency. The agency surveyed about 36,000 shoppers at nearly 300 commissaries worldwide in September.

Shoppers rated 18 areas, from availability of shopping carts and store appearance to the quality of food and produce. With the ratings ranging from 5 for “very good” to 1 for “very poor,” DeCA shoppers, on average, rated all areas in the “good” range. The lowest average score was 3.97 for the quality of produce and the highest was 4.47 for courteous, friendly, helpful employees.

“Based on input from our customers, overall patron satisfaction with store operations is up from last year’s input,” said Herman Weaver, operations research analyst with the analysis and evaluation division of DeCA’s directorate of plans and policy.

To conduct the survey, DeCA used survey teams of store employees. Three times each day, one hour after opening, mid-day and two hours before closing, team members distributed surveys to shoppers. The survey ran for 10 consecutive days.

Fifty-six percent of all survey respondents rated the commissary benefit as their most important service benefit. Medical benefits ranked second with 35 percent.

“The survey provides feedback from our customers that allows managers to target their patron mix, concerns and deficiencies,” said Weaver. One example of this is DeCA’s response to customer comments on their desire for additional shopping hours. DeCA recently was able to re-allocate resources resulting from a reduction in transportation costs and expanded hours of operations at key commissaries worldwide.

The bottom line, said officials, is that the survey helps DeCA provide its customers with better customer service. (Courtesy of American Forces Press Service)

Drug use prevention

Parents should talk to children about dangers

Did you know that during the past two to three years annual use of marijuana doubled among eighth graders? Fewer young people see the harm in using drugs. Yet, understanding the harms associated with drug use is one of the greatest deterrents. It is never too early to talk with your kids about drugs.

- ☐ Identify what perceptions your young people have about drugs.
- ☐ Reconcile your own previous or current drug use.
- ☐ Bridge the "generation gap" with your child to discuss drugs in the 1990's versus the 1960's and 1970's.
- ☐ Start early with your child to send clear messages about the dangers of drugs.
- ☐ Find out where to go if you or your child needs help.

For more information, contact the Army Substance Abuse Program, Building 276, at 242-6960 or 242-6962.

Positive parenting information

Family Advocacy Program offers reminders for busy parents

Your children first begin forming an opinion of themselves by the manner in which you talk to them. How they feel about themselves affects all aspects of their lives. Is much of what they hear positive or negative?

- ☐ Make ordinary, everyday experiences, pleasurable ones for your child.
- ☐ Set aside special times with each of your children. Allow them to choose an activity they would like to do.
- ☐ Catch you child being good.
- ☐ Move physically closer to your children when you talk to them. Hold them.
- ☐ For a heart-to-heart talk, go to the child's room or to a quiet place. Encourage your children to express their feelings – both positive and negative.
- ☐ When you talk to your children or when they talk to you, stop what you are doing and look them in the eye.
- ☐ Remember they are their own person and may do things differently than you.

- ☐ Respond to your child with patience and understanding. Scolding and criticizing your child in front of others demonstrates a lack of sensitivity and respect.
- ☐ Share your positive feelings with your child – often. Comment such as "That's no big deal" or "You shouldn't feel that way" makes your children believe that their feelings are not important to you.
- ☐ Help your child focus upon other people's strengths, developing tolerance for those with different values and backgrounds.

Through your daily words and actions, let your children know that they can't be replaced, that each is very special to you and that you love and value them. (Courtesy of Army Community Service Family Advocacy Program in recognition of April, Child Abuse Prevention Month and Month of the Military Child)

Investigator outlines child abuse causes, warning signs

Editor's Note: This is the first of a two-part article on Child Abuse. Part one covers the definition of child abuse, some of its causes and warning signs. Part two is scheduled for publication in the next issue of the Community News and will cover the effects of child abuse, how to report and prevent incidents of child abuse.

By Detective Dedra Thomas

Garrison Juvenile Violence Investigator

April is Child Abuse Prevention/Awareness Month. It is also recognized as the Month of the Military Child. As the Garrison Juvenile Violence Investigator I wanted to take this opportunity to share some very important information with you regarding child abuse.

Let's start with these startling facts:

- ❑ Nearly 2 million children suffer from child abuse each year.
- ❑ More than 1,000 children are known to die every year at the hands of their parents, 90 percent of them under the age of 5.
- ❑ Up to 6,000 children are permanently brain-damaged each year as a result of child abuse.
- ❑ More than 111,000 children are reported to be the victims of sexual abuse every year.

As high as these numbers are, they may be too low because so many parents did not admit to hurting their children. If the family practices abusive child-rearing techniques, the children learn those techniques and use them when they become parents. Thus, child abuse runs in a cycle with each generation teaching the next how to treat – and mistreat – children.

What is child abuse?

Child abuse is any mistreatment or neglect of a child, under the age of 18, that results in harm or injury. Child abuse can include:

- ❑ Physical abuse – purposely injuring a child by hitting, biting, shaking, kicking, burning or throwing objects
- ❑ Emotional abuse – crushing a child's spirit with verbal attacks, threats or humiliation
- ❑ Sexual abuse – sexual contact with a child, such as incest or inappropriate touching; using a child for sexual films, pictures or prostitution; obscene language; or exposure not involving contact
- ❑ Neglect – willfully failing to provide for a child's emotional or physical needs, such as love, attention, food, clothing or shelter; failing to offer guidance and supervision

Understanding people who abuse children is important to understanding child abuse. Since there is no "typical" child abuser you should know that they come from all economic, ethnic and social groups. Most are "ordinary" people, like your neighbors or co-workers, who are having serious personal problems. Most know – even love – the children they abuse. Often children are abused by a parent, another relative or a family friend.

There are, however, certain traits that are common among people who abuse children. Most child abusers have a low self-esteem or feelings of failure and frustration or don't think very highly of themselves. Many are easily overwhelmed by their feelings or have poor control over their emotions. In many cases, the child abusers were abused themselves earlier in life and have grown up thinking abusive behavior is "normal."

The major contributing factor that often leads to an abusive behavior is stress. Stress is always a danger. Sometimes a single event may lead to overwhelming stress; other times stress from everyday troubles can build to high levels.

Some common sources of stress include:

- ❑ Financial troubles: Limited financial resources can put great pressure on a family.
- ❑ Marital problems: A strained marriage can erupt into child abuse.
- ❑ Social isolation: Without a support network of friends or relatives, the pressures of day-to-day living can pile up without relief.

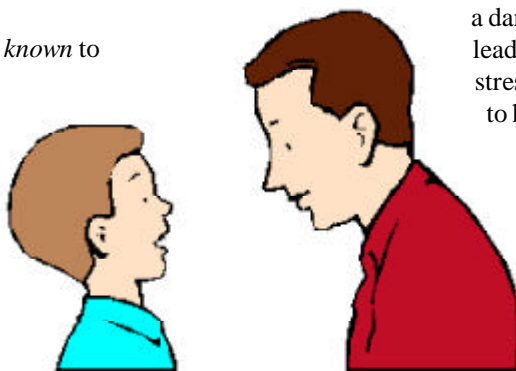

❑ Lack of knowledge about parenting: Parents who know little about children may expect too much from them. When children can't meet unrealistic demands, parents may become abusive.

❑ Illness: This can place financial and emotional strain on a household. Sick children or children with special needs may create an added burden.

❑ Abuse of alcohol and other drugs: Substances which cripple a person's emotional control can lead to legal and financial troubles that cause more strain.

Remember, many individuals and organizations are ready to help abusing and abused families, but they can only help if they know about the family. If you are aware of abuse, the sooner you act, the sooner things will improve; the longer a child's hurt is hidden, the greater the chances of permanent damage.

To report a suspected or known incident of child abuse occurring on this installation, including the Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center, call the Presidio of Monterey Police Department at 242-7851 or 242-7852 or call me, Investigator Dedra Thomas, at 242-7871.

Service holds Army Emergency Relief Fund campaign

The 1999 Army Emergency Relief Annual Fund Campaign for the Presidio of Monterey and Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center began April 1 and continues until May 1.

Army Emergency Relief is a privately run, non-profit organization, funded by active duty soldiers and retiree donations. AER exists to help the Army take care of its own. AER was established in 1942 to help soldiers and their families. This year marks the 57th anniversary of AER assistance to Army personnel worldwide.

According to a memorandum from Col. Daniel Devlin, commandant of DLIFLC and commander of DLIFLC and Presidio of Monterey, last year AER provided more than $86,500 to 126 soldiers, retirees and their families in the Presidio of Monterey community. "Nowhere else is this kind of generous assistance available to help Army families in time of need," said Devlin in the memo. The commander's memo also encouraged the same "outstanding voluntary support that made last year's campaign such a great success."

The following are representatives for this year's campaign:

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, DLIFLC

Defense Department expands anthrax vaccination immunization program

By Jim Garamone

American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON — Service members, Department of Defense emergency essential civilian employees and contractors must now receive anthrax vaccinations if they'll spend any time in one of 10 high-threat areas, the Pentagon announced March 31. Previously, only DOD personnel who were deploying for more than 30 days to a high-threat area had to start the six-shot vaccine series.

The modification to the anthrax vaccination immunization program is effective immediately.

The Joint Staff identified high-threat areas as Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Jordan, Yemen, Korea and Israel.

Officials said DOD initially set the 30-day threshold to help get the immunization program established and to make sure there were enough vaccine stocks on hand. Top priority went to those personnel already at high risk. Shots started in March 1998 with personnel in Southwest Asia. Since then, the program has matured and vaccine stockpiles have been built to support all military service demands, even with the elimination of the 30-day threshold.

The program modification will provide protection to U.S. personnel from the moment they arrive in theater. Since the effectiveness of the vaccine increases with each vaccination, the goal is for personnel to receive three vaccinations prior to deployment. If even one vaccination prior to deployment is not possible, vaccine stocks are available in the high-threat areas to immediately begin providing the shot series.

Personnel in fly-over or standby teams are not included in the program modification.

The program change is not expected to significantly increase demand for the vaccine. About 250,000 U.S. service members and DOD civilians will be inoculated in 1999; the number includes personnel affected by the new policy. About 31,000 to be vaccinated this year are reserve component members.

On March 9, Secretary of Defense William Cohen explained to U.S. airmen at a Kuwaiti air base that he made the decision to implement the immunization program because "I would be derelict in my duties sending you out in an environment in which you weren't properly protected."

"The sole reason for this program authorized by the secretary of defense is force protection," said Pentagon spokesman Navy Capt. Mike Doubleday during a recent news conference. "The shots are a medical measure designed to protect members of the U.S. military who may at some time be deployed to a theater where anthrax is a threat."

Doubleday said DOD began studying protecting service members from anthrax in the early 1990s. DOD is using the same vaccine that livestock workers and others at risk in the civilian sphere have received since the Food and Drug Administration approved it nearly 30 years ago. The FDA has been monitoring DOD's program, and DOD itself performs supplemental tests to guarantee continued quality and safety.

To date 218,000 service members received about 616,000 shots of the vaccine. Fewer than 200 have refused the shots — less than one-tenth of 1 percent of the force, said Doubleday.

DOD considers the refusal to comply with the anthrax immunization program as a lawful order violation that not only endangers an individual's health, but also places the unit and mission at risk.

SGLI, VGLI benefits

The Headquarters Air Force Personnel Center requested publication of the following Servicemember's Group Life Insurance and Veteran's Group Life Insurance information quoted from the February 1999 supplement to the book, "What Every Veteran Should Know."

"Changes in government life insurance programs, recently signed into law by President Clinton, now allow terminally ill veterans to receive accelerated death benefits. The Veterans Programs Enhancement Act established an option for the Veterans Affairs to pay these benefits under the SGLI and VGLI programs. The option allow terminally ill SGLI and VGLI policyholders to receive as much as half of their coverage, up to $100,000 during their lifetime."

This benefit applies to retired or separated veterans who hold SGLI or VGLI policies. It does not apply to active duty service personnel. To claim this benefit, veterans should provide a letter to the office of SGLI from their attending physician stating the veteran is terminally ill.

For additional information on this or other VA benefits, contact your nearest VA office.

New TRICARE law

A new law now protects TRICARE patients from being charged more for certain services.

In the past, the following providers were allowed to bill you considerably more for their services than what TRICARE paid them: pharmacies; portable x-ray companies; independent labs; durable medical equipment and medical supply firms; ambulance companies; and mammography suppliers. Under the new rule, however, providers can no longer charge you more than 15 percent over what TRICARE will allow.

If you have questions about your TRICARE billing, call a claims customer service representative at (800) 930-2929 (California or Hawaii).

Expeditionary Medal

WASHINGTON — The Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal will be awarded to service members who took part in or provided direct support to operations Joint Endeavor or Joint Guard in the Balkans. The Secretary of Defense has also approved the expansion of the area of eligibility for the medal for two other operations.

Secretary of Defense William Cohen has approved the award in addition to the Armed Forces Service Medal for qualified service in the Balkan operations. For awards purposes, Operation Joint Endeavor began Nov. 20, 1995, and ended Dec. 19, 1996; Operation Joint Guard began Dec. 20, 1996, and ended June 20, 1998. Officials estimate 50,000 service members are affected.

The Secretary has also approved the expansion of the area of eligibility for the award of the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal to Iraq Operations Southern Watch and Maritime Intercept Operations, both Dec. 1, 1995 to a date to be announced.

Service members with questions about their eligibility for this award should contact their local personnel offices for more information. (Courtesy of American Forces Press Service) have an extra stockpile of checks in case individual banks cannot post deposits.

"If an institution does not electronically receive a transaction, we can mail a check," he said. Depending on the situation, checks might be for the pay of one person, a handful or all the financial institution's DOD customers.

Amlin said the U.S. financial community is one of the better prepared in the country as far as Y2K problems are concerned. "A recent congressional study said the finance area is a leader in Y2K," he said.

He said service members, DOD civilians and retirees should not stockpile money. "I'm not going to go out and store cash," he said.

Amlin recommends service members, DOD civilians and retirees ask their financial institutions what they are doing to prevent Y2K problems. "I would imagine most [financial institutions] will include what they are doing on the monthly account statements," he said. "But if you don't see it, you should ask."

He also recommended doing any financial transaction early, if possible. "If you have to change allotments, change addresses, set up new accounts, you should do it early and not wait until December," he said.

Amlin has alerted the DFAS staff not to plan for holiday season leave this year. The service will try to "clear the pipeline" of financial transactions by late December, he said. The staff will stand by at year's end to handle any system problems that may arise.

College Level Testing Programs

The college level testing programs are a virtual gold mine for students. By earning credit through these programs, individuals can save themselves time and money. Each test equates to an average of $321 in tuition and 60 hours of time usually required for a three-semester hour course at a local college.

The five CLEP General Examinations are: English, Humanities, Social Sciences and History, Natural Science, and Mathematics. These gauge knowledge levels on subject categories normally completed during the first two years in college.

All of these examinations are recommended for six semester hours of lower level credit and are free to service members.

Information to explain, clarify classified ad policy

The following information is provided to explain and clarify policy for individuals who would like to publish classified ads in POM-Mart.

Military members, retirees and Department of Defense civilian employees with valid identification cards are authorized to place classified ads in the Community News.

To place an ad in the Community News, complete the form on the back page of the Community News and deliver it to the Public Affairs Office, Building 614, Room 142, Presidio of Monterey, 93944. Ads may also be sent via e-mail to the editor at wrightr@pom-emh1.army.mil. Individuals should be sure to include all information requested on the form, including the category of the ad.

Daytime work telephone numbers are for use by Community News staff only; they will not be listed in ads. Individuals may place up to three ads in different categories per issue. Each ad should not exceed 35 words; itemized property for sale should be valued at least $10.

The Community News staff will make every effort to publish ads accurately, but we reserve the right to edit ads to meet readability, format and space requirements. Report typographical errors to the editor, and they will be corrected as early as possible.

Acceptable classified ads include items in the categories of Autos; Motorcycles; Trucks, Vans, Sport, RVs; Wanted; Sports Equipment; Entertainment, Music Items; Computers and Accessories; Lost and Found; Miscellaneous; Pets or Household Items. Items must be for one-time sale or for free – not for a profit-sharing venture of multiple items.

Classified ads for businesses, rentals, free information, help for hire or tutoring, or illegal items are not authorized. Each ad will be published in three consecutive issues unless it is renewed or cancelled.

The date the ad was first published is printed in parentheses following each ad. For example, ads dated (03-26) will continue to run through the April 23 issue. Classified ads may be renewed or cancelled by phone; however, new ads, additions or major changes to ads must be done in writing before the Wednesday deadline for the next issue, generally a week and a half prior to publication. When calling in reference to an ad, be sure to identify the category, first few words of the ad, phone number as printed and the date following the ad.

Deadline for the April 23 issue is Wednesday; deadline for the May 7 issue is April 28.

Please refer questions concerning this policy to the editor of the Community News at the Public Affairs Office, at 242-5104.
